Haldeman said he took notes on the tapes and turned them over to the president.

Under questioning from the committee, Haldeman said the notes were no longer available to him and that he was testifying about the tapes' contents from memory.

Haldeman's revelation that he had listened to the two tapes - but no others came as he read to the senate committee late Monday afternoon a two-hour opening statement in which he denied any prior knowledge of the Watergate bugging or participation in the subsequent cover-up.

Like fellow White House aide John Ehrlichman, who completed five days of testimony before the committee earlier Monday, Haldeman also extended his defence to Nixon. "It now as there was a cover-up," deman told the committee. 'The critical question becomes who committed these acts, who directed them, who was aware of them?

The attention of Nixon, Haldeman and Ehrlichman was focussed on peace in Vietnam and domestic problems rather than Watergate, Haldeman said.

Haldeman told how from June, 1972, until February of year his personal handwritten notes of meetings with Nixon make a stack of paper eight inches high matters pertaining to Water-gate amounted to no more than one per cent of the total.

The problem is compounded by heavy buying in the Canadian and American market by the Japanese who are willing to pay high prices.

Retail price of top quality beef in Japan is up to $14 per pound.

However the Japanese government limits annual imports from all sources to 18,000 tons of beef. Japan buys from the U.S., Canada, Australia and South America, so the effect of Tokyo bidding has only a limited effect on each country's market. In Victoria the retail price porterhouse is about $2.50 per pound, although there is a wide range across the city and because of varying qualities of carcass. Steers bring top pirces with heifers mext and cows lowest.

ceive a fixed amount for each carcass. If there is resistance to the new price for T-bone steaks, then we have to get from porterhouse cuts, for example. We have some flexibility, according to demand."

The high wholesale beef price is expected to continue at least into Sept. 12 when the freeze ends in the United States. Canadian wholesalers happen to the price after that.

President Nixon, in announcing phase four of his econom ic plan, said he was compelled to end the wholesale freeze immediately on pork and poultry. — but not on domestic beet.

restriction was moved on the first two beause producers were sending breeder chickens and pregnant pigs to market to be slaughtered, in a rush to cash in on the high prices following This practice was depleting breeding supply of stock.

However, there was no evident selling of breeder beef, so the restriction was continued until Sept. 12.

The freeze applies only to wholesale prices of domestic beef. U.S. cattlemen are able to raise their prices to whole-salers but there is little buying because of the low profit

Many wholesalers are trying to delay sales until after Sept. 12 when they can charge sharply higher prices. This holdback is creating a shortage in the U.S., increasing the demand for Canadian beef at

There is no suggestion of a Canadian shortage of beef and none is expected unless the present situaiton were to be extended over many months. American demand for Cana-

SC Faces Fight in W.A.C. Riding

A byelection will be held Sept. 7 in former premier W. A. C. Bennett's riding of Okana-gan South and results of a poll by The Prov-ince show the Socreds may be hard pressed to retain the seat.

Announcement of the polling date was made Monday by Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall. Nomination day, the deadline for no-minating candidates will be Aug. 24.

The seat became vacant June 5 when Bennett announced his retirement from politics. Three candidates have been nominated to date: Conservative Leader Derril Warren, Bryan McIver for the NDP, and John Dyck, Liberal.

The Social Credit Party will hold its no-minating meeting Aug. 8. Bill Bennett, the former premier's 42-year-old son, has an-nounced he will run for the nomination and is a strong favorite.

Results of the recent survey of Okanagar South voters indicate a pronounced drop in the Socred popular vote percentage of 18 per cent. The Conservatives gained 14 points while both the NDP and Liberals are up two

Actual percentage figures were 32 per

There was no early word from the astronauts on how they felt today, but they were busy moving about the big space station installing a replacement tape recorder, working with a troublesome dehumidifier and hooking up

WASHINGTON - The U.S. Senate has adopted the most far-reaching reforms of political campaigning in U.S. history but Sen. Howard Baker, vice-chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee, said "there is more to come."

Baker, who voted "present" when the reform package was approved 82-8 Monday, told Senate the Watergate committee will make "sub-stantial recommendations" by next February when it completes the inquiry.
"I will offer legislation that will have a much more sweeping effect," Baker added. "I intend to go much further than this bill goes."

Baker, a Tennessee Republican, added that voting "present" was "by way of showing there is more to come."

The bill limits aggregate contributions by an individual to all federal candidates combined to $25,000.

It further provides that no more than $9,000 out of the $25,000 may be given to any one candidate — $3,000 in the primary, $3,000 in the general election

A similar $9,000 limit (in three $3,000 installments) is imposed on contributions to tary political fund like the AFLCIO's. These limits apply to donations both to Congressional and presidential can-

Laird Defends Bombing

WASHINGTON (UPI) Melvin Laird today vigorously defended secret bombing of areas of neutral Cambodia in 1969-70 as essential to save American lives but said the Pentagon committed a snafu in giving Congress doctored reports. (See also Page 10.)

Laird, who as defence sec-retary proposed the bombing and said he got President Nixon's authorization, insisted it was necessary both to reduce U.S. casualties at the time and expedite U.S. withdrawal.

Laird, now a counsellor to President Nixon, said the raids on so-called sanctuary areas for North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops made secretly because of diplomatic sensitivities. Cambodia was proclaiming itself neutral at the time. But U.S. officials say Prince Norodom Sihanouk gave tacit approval for the bombing provided they were not publicly reported.

Since the Vietnam cease-fire, U.S. bombers have at-tacked Communist forces menacing Cambodia, now under the Lon Nol regime that deposed Sihanouk and toward the United States.

bombing is to halt under a congressionally imposed deadline Aug. 15. Supreme Court Justice Thur-good Marshall is expected to rule shortly on a case involving a federal district judge's order to halt the raids immediately.

Laird said he never condoned falsifying records to conceal the bombing that took place prior to May, 1970, when U.S. forces, with announced air support, moved across the South Vietnames border to clear the sanctuary areas.

Some witnesses have told Congress that bombing records were altered and some were destroyed.

A Pentagon report to Congress about 90 days ago on the Cambodia bombing did not detail the extent of the pre-1970 raids and Laird said

'this was a mistake."
"In 1969 and 1970 there was a reason (not to disclose the raids publicly)," Laird said, but added "it was a snafu and a mistake to send that report to a congressional committee (earlier this year)."

No Place for Topsy

The detailed rezoning process which is now to be applied to the downtown area should assist in a better system of control of the city's development than is now possible under the blanket C2 commercial category. The same principle should eventually be extended to the whole community in the form of a general plan for growth, abandoning the system whereby important additions to the city's structure are made on a localized, individual basis.

The result has been, for instance, that an isolated highrise or a huddled group of them can be seen spotted in almost any direction in the city, often to the detriment of the scene and of the overall plan - when we get one for the community.

Exactly what the long-range goal of city planning is has never yet been adequately defined and organized. The new zoning method will not be a substitute for an overall plan, of course, but it could be an important tool in achieving an acceptable result. So far we seem to be determining the position and type of our rooms without first making clear just what sort of building we propose to con-

A beautiful and useful city cannot be produced haphazardly. The shape of things to come and the purpose of that shape should be clearly in mind before we start laying bricks and sawing lumber.

On a lower plane, the same hitor-miss system is found. We do not plan and build a neighborhood, we plan and build streets and later see how well they integrate. We do not plan a street as an entity consisting of harmonious and complementary units. On the contrary, we put up buildings one by one, each with its own purposes, appearance and location, and the chances of producing a cohesive street, such as the many examples in Europe, are

One of the reasons is that the city council does not have sufficient power to direct development into an integrated whole. We can legislate fire and sanitary regulations, for instance, but are still largely at the mercy of builders as to what any given building will look like. That makes basic planning almost impossible. And even within the limits of the city's control, too many projects apparently receive their building permits and get under way with no real toplevel offical knowledge or appreciation of what is going up.

Within recent times, Victoria's city councils have shown an awakened realization of the community's needs and of council's responsibilities in regard to them. Some members are working to overcome past shortcomings and get a better grasp of the city's growth. But there is much still to be done on what is the community's most fundamental problem. Aldermen might find much greater public support than they expect for forthright action to build the city for living and working rather than for individual and often conflicting promotional ventures.

Local youth workers and police officers say that among teenagers alcohol is slowly replacing drugs as a means of getting "stoned". Parents may heave a sigh of relief that youth is turning back to one of societies' more acceptable vices. Many parents, looking back on their youth, can understand "a few beers after the prom" as an exciting, if forbidden, introduction to the adult world.

Too bad it's not that simple. Given equal legal standing, a marijuana cigarette might be less socially harmful than a weekend teenage drinking bout. It should be remembered that alcohol, like marijuana, is a depressive drug.

In British Columbia there are an estimated 45,000 alcoholics, and another 86,200 persons, or 7.05 per cent of the population, are drinking dangerously, according to the B.C. Alcoholism Foundation. It is also generally recognized that alcofor some types of persons.

Heavier drinking among young people should come as no surprise considering the lowered drinking age and the harsh penalties against illegal so-called soft drugs. Nor is it a matter of merely adding hol is an extremely addictive drug up the pros and cons of two comparative evils like alcohol and marijuana. Perhaps we should be examining our social values, institutions, and general culture which seem to make so many young people resort to either in an effort to "get out of it."

Irony in Texas Laws

A strong note of irony echoes through the Canada Development Corporation's attempt to buy Texas Gulf Inc., the large American-owned resource company which does the majority of its business in Canada.

The $290-million takeover bid has been temporarily stalled by a court order based on a Texas statute that any company owning minerals in the state must have a majority of U.S. shareholders and a majority of Texas directors. It's the kind of legislation which upsets Americans when they encounter it in foreign countries.

And it is even more interesting from the Canadian point of view. If Canada had passed laws similar to the Texas statute years ago perhaps we might not need a government corporation like the CDC

Lies Bolstered by Lies

NEW YORK - The proper word for the Cambodian bombing story is not dissembling or deceiving or protective reaction or cover story. The proper word is lying. And this long chronicle of lies, perhaps more graphically than the Pentagon Papers, shows the extent to which lying is a respected "option" at the top levels of the so-called "national security establishment," including the White

For fourteen months, the Pentagon, the State Department and the White House repeatedly insisted that Cambodian neutrality was being respected, while all conspired to keep secret the fact that in 3,630 raids American B-52's had dropped more than 100,000 tons of bombs on Cambodia.

Documents Falsified

During that period, the left hand of the Pentagon lied repeatedly to the right hand, as documents were falsified to show the 3.630 raids as having been launched not on Cambodia but on South Vietnam. Only a few high officials with a "need to know" were told the truth.

(This raises the question how anyone knows what the real truth is, even today. If one set of documents was fixed, why not another? Maybe there were 5,000 raids? Who knows? Were they lying to Dr. Kissinger, too? To President Nixon?)

Even after secret war became open war in Cambodia, the lies continued. Last March and last June, the Pentagon sent deliberately lying reports, concealing the Cambodian bombings, to the Senate Armed Services Committee. The Pentagon spokesman, Jerry Friedheim, knowingly distributed the same lies to the press.

"I knew at the time it was wrong and I'm sorry," Friedheim said, when caught. He ought to be fired out of hand, but he won't be. It even appears that he may have opposed within Pentagon circles the decision to lie to the Senate committee, which was deliberately taken at the highest level. If so, he ought to have quit out of hand, but he went along.

Of this compounded lie, Friedheim's summary judgment was eloquent. "We weren't smart enough to foresee." he said, the testimony of former Maj. Hal M. Knight, who disclosed the secret bombing and falsified documentation. They weren't smart enough not to get caught in the lie, that is; if they had been, they'd have told a different and less detectable lie.

If all of this lying was originally to fend off increased domestic opposition to the Southeast Asia war, then to cover up the original lies, it was indefensible. If Prince Sihanouk had agreed to the bombing, and the lies were to protect him from the wrath of his own people, it was indefensible. If the lying was for both reasons, it was twice as indefensible; since either way it was intended primarily to permit the president and his war machine to pursue their war without letup or hindrance from anyone, least of all the American people.

Dr. Kissinger deplores the falsification of records. What did he expect, when he and Nixon deliberately ordered the falsification of the facts of the Cambodian bombing? Why should majors and colonels have higher standards than the White House?

Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, the former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, expressed horror at the falsification of the records, but said that if the president had ordered him to falsify them, "I would have done it." Why should he be astonished that when some general ordered some major to do it, the major

Worst of all, Nixon himself appeared on national television and told the American people on April 30, 1970, that since 1954 American policy had been to "respect scrupulously the neutrality of the Cambodian people." And for five years, he said, "neither the United States nor Vietnam has moved against" North Vietnamese sanctuaries in Cambodia. This was after 14 months of B-52 raids on Cambodia, including the sanc-

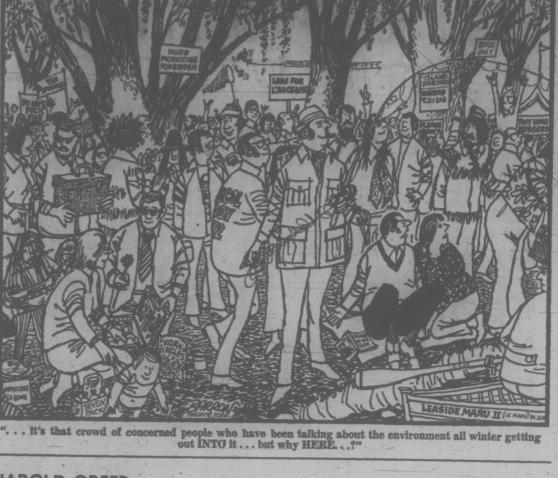

Credibility Questioned

This was a deliberate and knowing lie, broadcast in person to the American people by their president. Neither the claim that it was not really a lie but a "special security arrangement," nor the contention that other presidents have done it, is a justification; both are indictments of the "security" that distorts national life. And this episode clearly calls into question the credibility of Nixon's television address of April 30, 1973, when he claimed innocence of wrongdoing in the Watergate matter.

But whatever history may say, Yeats had lines for all these spokesmen and generals and diplomats and presidents: ... weigh this song with the great

Intario and the Hydrogate

TORONTO - Premier William Davis' recollections before the Legislature's "Hydrogate" investigators have not had the quieting effect which his supporters, it is safe to say, were expecting. Indeed his evidence, in the light of what had gone before, was explosive and raised more questions than it answered,

The issue in this complicated affair is no longer whether Canada Square Corporation received preferential treatment from Ontario Hydro in the awarding of a contract to finance and build Hydro's new $44.5 million head office. That question has been answered affirmatively by the evidence to date.

The issue now is whether this preferential treatment resulted from the fact that Canada Square's president, Gerhard Moog, is a close personal friend of the Premier. On that score, there had been precious little affirmative evidence to date. Now, as a result of Mr. Davis' testimony, followed by that of Mr. Moog, there is - to put it mildly - rather

Prior to their appearances, the only suggestion of political influence in the transcript was a paragraph in a report to Hydro written by Hydro's architect, Kenneth Candy, following a meeting on June 11, 1971, with Mr. Moog in which Mr. Candy asked if Canada Square was interested in building Hydro's head office on a lease-purchase basis. Apropos of nothing, the paragraph reads:

Further Financing

"He says he is going over to Germany next month as an adviser to the Premier of Ontario to arrange further financing for the province."

Phis, information was subsequently dismissed by Hydro officials as an instance of name-dropping to which they paid no attention. In addition, it was Moog had ever been an adviser to the Premier on matters of provincial fi-

And there the matter appeared to rest until R. E. Shibley, the legislative committee's counsel, interviewed Mr. Moog before calling him as a witness. As a result of information obtained, as the police say, Mr. Shibley immediately called on Mr. Davis, who thereupon suggested that perhaps he should not only be a witness before the committee, but the next witness - ahead of Mr.

Duly sworn, Mr. Davis testified that could be a certain substance to what Candy had reported from Moog. On Aug. 8, 1971, he said, he and Mr. Moog and their two wives left for a short holiday in Europe. In planning the trip, he had mentioned to Mr. Moog the possibility of having "a general discussion with representatives of the banking community in Munich" and had suggested Mr. Moog might like to sit in. It was to be a "general discussion," not involving any borrowing by the province, but conceivably Mr. Moog might have mentioned it to Mr. Candy in a way that caused Mr. Candy to report it as he did.

What follows now is a composite of Mr. Davis' and Mr. Moog's evidence.

The Munich discussions in fact never took place because the holiday was cut short. However, Mr. Davis had a hunch that the U.S., plagued by balance-ofpayment problems, was about to impose restrictions against Canadian imports (it did a few days later) and asked Mr. Moog, in the course of a three-day trip through the Black Forest, if he had banking contacts in Zurich who were knowledgeable in international econom-

Mr. Moog did indeed, and arranged an appointment. The following day, "well fortified" by a bottle of wine (Mr. Moog's account) and driving a borrowed "very fast" Mercedes, they set off for Zurich. Mr. Moog took a wrong turn and then they had a flat tire, which he and the Premier had to fix. Still, by, "testing the capability of the machine" and not stopping to change from tourist clothes, they made it to Zurich before the bank closed and held their meeting in a very large boardroom with two of the senior bankers of one of the very big banks in Switzerland.

In the course of this meeting, Mr. Moog observed that Mr. Davis was deeply engrossed in conversation with one banker and he more or less withdrew with the other banker to the other end of the boardroom where they began a casual conversation in German. At this point, Mr. Moog raised the question of whether the Swiss bank would be interested in financing Canada Square should the company enter into an agreement with Ontario Hydro to construct the head office on a lease-purchase basis. He was told the bank's interest would be limited to a loan of $20 million for 15 years at six and one-half per cent interest.

Mr. Davis testified he was dimly aware of Mr. Moog's conversation in German with the Swiss banker but, not knowing the language, he did not know the content and indeed never learned of it until Mr. Shibley told him.

Another "Sandringham" is developing

However, a few weeks after their return to Canada, during a social occasion. at the Davis home, Mr. Moog mentioned to him that he had been "approached" by Ontario Hydro concerning the head office project. Mr. Davis said he replied: "Fine, now let's talk about something

Some months later, when Hydro chairman George Gathercole advised him, mentioning no names, that Hydro was studying proposals from various developers, Mr. Davis said he replied that whatever Hydro did should not affect "the capital situation." By this he meant, and Mr. Gathercole would have understood, that Hydro should not borrow money to build the head office by contractor in the regular way but should find a developer who would do it lease-purchase.

Mr. Davis agreed he was aware at the time he gave Mr. Gathercole this advice that Mr. Moog would be a contending de-

Questions Arise

Concerning, this testimony, certain questions inevitably arise:

-Why did Mr. Davis "advise" Hydro to use a developer, rather than raise the money itself? Mr. Davis' only explanation was that the conversation took place at a time when the 1972 provincial budget was being prepared and the question of capital borrowing would have been one of his "priorities." In fact the 1972 Budget contains no hint that capital borrowing was then a matter of concern; it is an expansionist budget requiring only "moderate" borrowing on the money

-Why did Mr. Davis, knowing his friend Moog had been "approached" by Hydro, not caution Mr. Gathercole that if Hydro went the developer route, it posals equally?

-Why did Mr. Moog not mention the approach until late August, after the European trip, when in fact he had been approached almost three months before? What follow-up did Mr. Moog make on his Zurich contact? What results did he convey to Ontario Hydro and in what

Some of these questions will probably never be answered: Mr. Davis got the kid-glove treatment from even the opposition members on the committee when tough cross-examination was called for.

As for Mr. Moog, it has been established that he did indeed pursue the opportunity to borrow $20 millions at six and one half per cent from Switzerland. But he has refused, on the advice of counsel, to produce his records on this aspect, despite a Speaker's warrant that he do so. At this writing the issue is unresolved and the committee is showing signs of backing down.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of July 31, 1913:

Tenders were opened this afternoon at the city hall for the portions of the Sooke Waterworks contract which are to be sublet. The principal ones were for the concrete flow line, about 271/2 miles in length, and for the steel pressure pipe from the Humpback reservoir to the city. Prior to the opening of the bids Ald. McNeill asked the commissioner how much money was in sight to pay for the works now contemplated. Mr. Rust replied that some $450,000 was available from the recent sale of stock. The alderman then entered a protest against the city incurring obligations without having the money in sight to meet them.

When the unit proved successful, neighbors asked to have the devices installed and then more units were made until about 1,000 are now in use in Scandinavia, chiefly in vacation homes.

Lindstrom and his son, Carl, have arranged for a concern in Oslo, the Andstor the units. A thousand units under the name of "Multrum" and plans are going forward for larger-scale manufacture.

From the floor above, two vertical chutes go down into the container. One holds the toilet seat and lid; the second chute, in the kitchen, is for garbage. At the time of installation a layer of garder soil and grass chippings is placed on the slanting floor of the container. As the wastes accumulate under the two chutes composting begins and a temperature of body heat is attained. This moderate warmth causes water in the material to evaporate and to rise into a vent pipe which goes up through the roof or

Leave Two Years

The unit needs no attention for the first two years while the composting wastes are slowly drying out and moving down the slanting bottom, Then the householder opens a hatch at the lower end and finds a pile of dry, black, odorless humus which repre-sents only 5 per cent by volfore. Tests by health authorities have found no harmful bacteria or viruses in the hu-mus, which is safe to use as garden fertilizer. Humus output is about 70 pounds per which occurs in a septic tank. The vent leads the water

Basement Unit For cold climates an electrical heating unit is placed under the container to keep the composting going during the winter, and when a unit is required to serve many peospeed up the natural ventila-tion. Carl Lindstrom is adapting the unit for multiple-famidwellings and this may require special flush toilets using only a fraction of a gal-ion of water per flush.

Even with elimination of the traditional flush toilet, the need will not be reduced for sanitary sewers to carry away waste water from the bathtub, washing machine,

It does seem odd that the major disposal problem, human body wastes with their organisms, is already solved but that relatively inoffensive wash water must still be away from each house through an expensive sewer system. So one chal-lenge is left, and here the Lindstroms have come up with a further answer: they unit that cleanses wash water to the point where it can be safely used for lawn sprinkling and car washing. Any surplus is piped into the storm drain with no ecological damage, or it can be used to

And so the outlines of a seshape. In cities and towns of the future, houses would have incinerating or composting systems to dispose of body wastes. In apartment house office buildings, and factories, a large self-contained unit would dispose of all human wastes, without the need for a sewer connection. All other

More Costly

In any case, no sanitary sewers or central sewage treatment plants would be needed anywhere. (Relatively small plants would still be needed in metropolitan centres to clean off-street storm water of its burden of oil, dirt, and trash.) Of course, industrial wastes and agricultural drainage would still present serious problems to our society, greater in amount than all present municipal wastes. Corrective action is now under way to abate these pollution sources.

The economics of a sewerless society, based on the waste disposal systems such "destroilet," probably be more costly than community sewerage and wastewater treatment and

The argument is between from thousands of homes for "point of origin" approach in which each house or larger building disposes of its own wastes without a sewer connection. A cost-benefit analy sis of this technical subject would be helpful.

The advantages of mass production may favor concentrated sewage disposal, and yet . . . it is costing one family $1,400 to connect their vacation home to the sewer of a shore resort. In other places a sewer connection may cost from $400 to $1,700 a house. In Ontario, 300 buyers of lots near a ski resort have learned they cannot build anless they spend $3,000 dollars each to install sewers. since the soil will not accommodate septic tanks.

Such capital sums would go a long way to pay for the new technlogy that entirely eliminates the need for sanitary sewers and treatment plants. (The cost of a Multrum system, including the water purifier, is about $2,000, but mass production should lower this substantially.) So the technology may not cost more after all. Even if it doubled the cost of traditional methods, the advantages of a sewerless society would far outweigh the added costs.

Play It Again, Daddy

American, the tape salesman had said. "You will never regret it."

I bought it. "The Big Nosy Ear System," it was called. A secret tape recorder for every wall in the bouse. It had to be installed in dead of night, of course, so the family and neighbors would not know.

At first there was comfort in know. At first there was comfort in know ing the tapes were there in the walls, eager to record for posterity. Now history would have a complete record of my every utterance. I had not bargained for the snoring,

It was appalling to hear that inhuman snore the first time I checked the tapes. It occupied more than three tapes. It occupied more than une-hours of the very first night's tape. I had never heard myself snore before. It was startling. If the American people had heard it, my image would surely have been badly damaged, with possihave been badly damaged, with possibly disastrous results at the polls.

Certainly I did not want posterity to remember me as a heavy snorer.

Would Lincoln be the figure we revere today if every school child could go to the Smithsonian and listen to tapes of the snorther? In short, I described the his shoring? In short, I destroyed the tapes. To prevent more from being made, I had my wife sit by my bed through the night, ready to roll me over on my left side the instant I began to snore, that being the side on which I could sleep noiselessly. This, of course, caused a substanital change in my wife's routine. Having to sit awake through the night, she necessarily slept much of the day. Good scout that she was, she never once complained, nor even asked for a fuller explanation after I told her it was a matter of national security.

The children were, naturally, not so rant. They were puzzled about the way I spoke to them once I began speaking to them for posterity. When the darlings would come scampering into the Oval Office for a ride on daddy's knee, they invariably looked depressed when I would cry happily, "Ah! my lit-tle fellow Americans! How it delights a weary father's heart to snatch these rare moments of paternal joy from the heavy burden of serving America!"

The children began avoiding me. I pulled the tapes on their nursery and after sitting through hours of conversa-tion about comic books, bubble gum and popular singers, I heard little Arno's voice say, "Do you think daddy is going erazy, the way he makes speeches to the walls every time he sees us?"

And Sheila said, "Oh, Arno, don't you know anything at all? That's the way all presidents talk all the time."

I wanted to cry when I heard them speak that way, but I caught myself in the nick of time. The tapes in the walls of the room in which I was sitting were recording me listening to the tapes of the children's nursery chatter, and I didn't want them. didn't want them recording me in the act of crying, because I remembered what had happened to Muskie.

One of the best things about the tapes was the assurance that my withy sayings would be preserved. I've always considered myself a witty fellow, for a president, and I wanted my more clever sayings to go down in history.

Unfortunately, nobody ever seemed to remember and retell them. Everything witty that Dorothy Parker ever said seemed to have been recorded on the spot and rushed off to the presses, but I could get off witticism after witticism without anybody even laughing. The tapes were a blessing.

This was the cause of the Japanese crisis. The emperor was in the Oval Office on his state visit when he suddenly said something that inspired me to think of a wonderful witticism.

Just as I got the line off, however, the Emperor launched into a discussion of the weather in a loud voice, thereby drowning out my witticism on the tapes. I waited for him to finish and then started to repeat my line again. This time he drowned it out by asking why the first lady had big black circles why the first lady had big black circles under her eyes.

I was so angry that I lost my temper and told him to be quiet while I spoke a witty saying. In anger, of course, I forgot the line entirely—I cannot remember it to this day—and said something disagreeable to the Emper-

Personally, I have always thought it was the tapes that kept me from getting re-elected. There were so many of them going that no man could have listened to them all as carefully as they de-served and still have time left over to be President, particularly if he spent a let of time splicing the tapes to give the day's witty sayings just a little bit more sparkle.

Radioactive Leak Blamed On Corrosion

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) -The Atomic Energy Commission Monday blamed the At-lantic Richfield Hanford Co. for not making an early de-tection of the recent leak of high-level radioactive material from an underground storage tank at the AEC's

The AEC report indicated thousands of gallons of the radioactive substance would not have leaked if the firm, an AEC contractor, had not AEC contractor, had not failed to "review and evaluate detection date from measure-ments taken at the site."

An AEC investigative com-mittee found that the leak began on or about April 20, but that it was not reported by Atlantic Richfield Hanford Co., an ABC contractor, until

The AEC report said the company itself has estimated that if the leak had been determined at the earliest possi-ble time "the loss could have been limited to between 26,700 and 37,600 gallons."

Although the exact cause of the leak has not been determined, the report said, "the most probable cause was corrosion of the 30-year-old carbon steel tank by waste solutions."

B.C. Expects Ottawa to Block Provincial Bank Control

The British Columbia government believes the federal government will head off any attempt by provincial governments jointly to get control of Canada's chartered banks.

Although the provinces will have to wait for the legislation to be introduced before learning all details, the tone of Finance Minister John Turner's proposal leads B.C. officials to believe the maxmum holding in any existing bank will total 10 per cent.

Therefore, if Alberta bought 10 per cent of the voting shares of the Bank of British Columbia, the B.C. government would be shut out com-

Fishing, 'Protection' And What to Call Dad

The weekend in review, and first a quick note from Export Salmon Derby general manager Doug Keough:

"In the name of conservation, the Cowichan Bay boundaries for the $25,000 event, Aug. 11-12, have been altered."

Doug was only kidding, of course, still he didn't deny that pressure from the mainland fisherman may have had some thing to do with the change. Last year eight of the top 10 fish were taken from the Cowichan Bay waters.

As it is now, fishing has been eliminated from the mouth of the Cowichan, and won't be allowed west of a line from the Wilcuma wharf to a derby marker on the bluff outside of Genoa Bay. Another boundary is a line across Sansum Narrows from Maxwell Point to Arbutus Pointt just above Maple. Bay, and the southwest boundary is from Match Point to Cape Keppel. This eliminates Saanich Inlet fishing as well.

Speaking of fishing, Mike Smith of North Vancouver, derby vice-chairman, who will supervise the Island part of the annual event, has a story to tell.

Mike was fishing last fall in Rivers Inlet country when he got a hit. But as he reeled in, the peculiar thing was that his line was going one way and the fish was going the other. Suddenly he saw his lure. No fish. But he kept reeling, still had action, and then noted he had hooked another line, and not his fishing partner's.

He grabbed the line, and hand-lined it and the fish, 12-pound coho, into the boat. It turned out the fish had been hooked the day before, and an American tourist had lost everything when he made a grab for the rod. Thus Mike ended up with fish, lure, line, rod and reel, "and a fine rod it was too," he said.

Incidentally, he also reported that the coho fishing "was so good up there, we were throwing back 10-pounders

Ocops! Here's a note, just in, telling of another salmon derby. This one is at Port Angeles, Sept. 1 and 2, and the cost is $10 a day with a prize list approximating $25,000. Details on request.

If Pat Stapleton's move to Chicago Cougars from the Black Hawks ranks as the biggest surprise of the summer after the Gordie Howe case, the problem, according to G. Howe, is that the Black Hawks "could have kept Bobby Hull if they really wanted to, when he made the jump to the WHA.

The major unsigned Hawks at the moment are Stan Mikita, who also has been approached by the Cougars, and Ralph Backstrom, another veteran. It's more than likely that one, or both might make a move before the pre-merger time runs out. Either that, or get a better deal from the Hawks. Otherwise, the Hawks may be the losers as they were the first

Meanwhile, to pick up a few missed putts from the G. Howe tournament. Miles Desharnais, Canucks' ticket manager and low-gross winner, was telling of the coaching ability of now departed Vic Stasiuk. "He made a hockey player out of Bobby Lalonde," Miles said. "He showed him how to protect himself (Lalonde is 5'6") in the corners, told him to keep the butt end of his stick out when being checked, and to carry his stick head high otherwise. This would at least discourage many of those cheap shots at a little fellow. Besides, he guaranteed Lalonde "Protection" on the ice. Never would he be out there without either an Arnie Schmautz or a Barry care of any unwarranted attack Lalonde's well being. "He kept his word, too," said Miles 'and Lalonde was a vastly improved player,'

Otherwise, too, Gordie did say his troublesome knee and his arthritic left wpist are "fine" and yes, he has been cleared by his personal physician to play with Houston. Training for the Howes actually started this week. All were to be instructors at a hockey school. As for Mark, he did express some concern over his upcoming career at Houston. It is what Marty and he would call Howe Sr. on the ice.

"We've been talking about it a said Mark, "and it would seem rather funny too, if we started yelling:

'Pass the puck, Dad." But I suppose we'll come up with something.

It was the second disqualification of the night and the crowd of 1,800 who had paid up to $10 for seats began chanting, "We want a fight."

They rained cups with ice on the ring and someone threw a chair that hit Carter

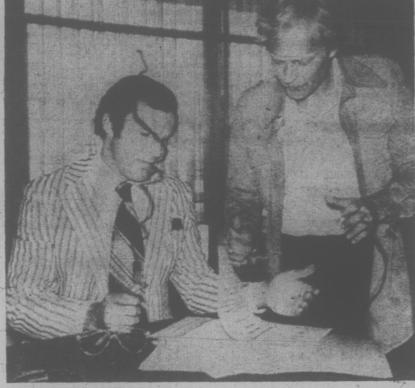

DiFazio offered to waive the disqualification and continue -the fight but Carter refused. claiming he had been injured

An estimated 100 police from Niles and the surrounding area were called in to calm the crowd and escort

Carter away.

Lou Capparelli, executive secretary of the Illinois Boxing Board, said he would recnend a lifetime suspension in Illinois for Carter. Carter said after the fight that he was so keyed up he couldn't think of anything but getting at DiFazio.

There was no finer tribute to a man's effort than one tendered by Dick Scybert. The Seattle golfer had been beaten, rather convincingly, by Dave Mick in the quarter-finals.

Instead of sulking and alibiting, the first thing Scybert did after his game was to introduce himself to Shvetz. The reason."I just had to congratulate the guy who whipped this course into such great shape. In three days, I never once had a bad lie or have a putt go off line. I've never seen a 6,200-yard course play like 7,200. This man is a genius."

Scybert also emphatically agreed with Peter Yagi, the youngster from Seattle University who found distances around the course "absolutely honest."

Very obviously, the keeper of the green had conditioning licked. Now all he needs to learn is how to go fishing with a guy who won't knock big fish off his line.

Gen. Ryan confirmed that B-52 attacks in northern Laos between Feb. 17, 1970 and April 26, 1972, also had "spe-cial reporting procedures" in effect "to restrict widespread knowledge of these strikes."

Wheeler testified he be-lieved about 149 such attacks had been made by May, 1970. Wheeler, who served as JCS chairman for six years, left office in July, 1970. Again, he said the reason for not disclosing the information was for "diplomatic" rather than

Ryan said the raids were covered up, for all but those few people who had a "need to know," by being reported as having taken place in southern Laos where the U.S. was acknowledging bombing supply routes. The bombing in northern Laos was generally in support of Laotian govern-ment forces in their battle with Pathet Lao Communist Wheeler, under questioning, said he assumed the White House was informed of the specific dual-reporting procedures being used, since he had told former defence sections. Making Laind wheelers Melvin Laird about them, and since he received a subsequent message from the president praising him (Wheeler) "for high security that has been maintained."

Wheeler's heavy emphasis on the president's demand for secrecy tends to back up an assertion by Laird last week that the National Security Council, which is headed by the president, recommended that the "special reporting procedures" be established.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A $300 fine was ordered for a 47-year-old Victoria man for assaulting two American girls on a Victoria street July 18, before they were rescued by a passing motorist.

"I was drinking and I made a mistake. I've already spent 12 days in jail," John Vincent McDonald, of 1104 Johnson told Victoria provincial court Monday.

But Judge William Ostler considered his excuse "ridicu-lous. The girls were minding their own business and you accosted them."

McDonald pleaded guilty to the charges July 19. Court was then told the girls were walking towards the Victoria Youth Hostel when McDonald approached them and asked them to go and sit in the park

The girls refused but McDonald insisted. While he forcefully tried to convince them a man driving by saw the girls in trouble and came to help them. The unidentified — motorist held McDonald until police came. Ostler commended the "decent citizen who was passing by at the time. He took the trouble to stop and make it his business." Ostler ordered a one-year's probation term for McDonald and cautioned him about his drinking. "More people com-mit crimes and go to jail for alcohol than for any other reason," he said.

A 22-year-old man was fined $300 and sentenced to one day in jail for possession of a 1970 Triumph motorcycle stolen in Burnaby June 22.

Jae Lacey, of no fixed address, was also fined $100 for possession of stolen identification cards, including a tification cards, including a drivers' licence, owned by Lewis Grant of Langley. "This is the time to bring you up short," said Ostler after consulting a pre-sentence record that indicated tence report that indicated Lacey had been "fiddling around" with drugs. "But I'll Sears ferry workers presented a brief on contract demands to the B.C. Ferry Authority today and asked for further bargaining sessions:

At the same time, negotia-tors for 1,500 unlicensed ferry workers are conducting a series of meetings to inform their membership of bargaining progress to date.

Both groups are part of the B.C. Government Employees Union and have been cooperating in contract talks which began about three weeks ago.

Peter Marshall, Victoria spokesman for the licensed-workers, said today he hopes the unlicensed workers reje the contract proposals offered by the ferry authority so that bargaining can continue.

He said he is very converned about the present low level of morale among li-censed members of the ferry fleet. There is "a great deal of disatisfaction" among staff at present, he said.

Heart Device Defect Feared heart patients in Greater Victoria are being replaced ahead of schedule because of the possibility they are defective, a city heart specialist confirmed today.

Dr. Ronald Forth said about 15 of the devices have been replaced and another 15 will be, likely within a month. At the same time, he said there is no need for people with pacemakers to panic.

The pacemaker is a batterypowered device, about the size and shape of a pocket watch, implanted in the chest of some heart patients to ensure their hearts maintain a proper rhythm. It is replaced periodically in all cases to renew the power supply.

Forth explained that the potential problem lies in a warning system within some kinds of pacemakers made by the Medironic Co. of Minneapolis. Medtronic engineers have discovered that a rhythm change which is supposed to signal weakening batteries does not always occur on certain models. The problem has been corrected in newer

Another Chance For Immigrants

OTTAWA (CP) — The government plans to proclaim allowing visitors to apply for legislation later this week giving illegal immigrants in Canada a chance to legalize their status without penalty.

Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Monday he was "99.9 per cent sure" proclamation would take proclamation would take place Wednesday but a de-partment spokesman said later "a snag has come up" and proclamation will not occur until sometime later in

Passed with all-party sup-port in the Commons, the leg-islation offers all illegal immigrants 60 days to come for-ward and declare themselves to immigration officials.

The deadline, if the bill becomes law later in the week, would be early October.

Estimates of the number of illegal immigrants in Canada range from 50,000 to 200,000 but Andras says the government "honestly doesn't know" the exact figure. The legislation is designed to cover all illegal immigrants 18 and over no matter how long they have been

In particular, it will cover those caught by revoca-

To qualify under the bill, person must have been in Canada no later than Nov. 30 last year but will not have to qualify under the normal points system used a to determine acceptability. "As far as this program goes, we're throwing the points system out the window," Andras said in an interview Monday.

Instead, he said, persons declaring themselves will be judged on a compassionate and individual basis.

"If they can give any dem-onstration at all that they have adjusted to life in Canada, or will be able to adjust. we'll be only too glad to give them landed status.'

Other factors, such as criminal records and physical health, must be considered, he said, but "well over 90 per cent . . . we hope almost 100 per cent' will be accepted.

If persons don't take advantage of the program, he said, they will lose all appeal rights if discovered and deported. Appeal rights will remain for all those registering before the deadline.

Specialty bread prices will be increased by as much as two cents a loaf next week, says McGavin Toastmaster

The move follows a two-cent a loaf increase last month adopted by most B.C. Bakeries for standard loaves, hot dog and hamburger buns, because of increased operathave told the government they are prepared to start warning consumers that the product should not be taken just to cure upset stomach.

At the same time, however, Miles Laboratories said it does not believe the govern-ment should require Alka-Seltzer labels to warn people with stomach ulcers not to take the product at all.

The company made the comments in testimony before a panel of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration which is reviewing over-the-counter aspirin products to determine which should be left on the market and which are safe and effective as claimed. The review is part of the agency's look at the entire patent medicine business.

Miles released the testimony, given Monday, in response to a new attack on Alka-

Plan 'Narrow in Its Views'

Goudoever praising a brief which says the Pacific Coast Centre Foundation is "partisan and extremely narrow in its views of the people's needs."

The foundation is promoting a $10 million concert hall and convention centre for Victoria.

Van Goudoever, a Sooke resident who describes himself as a "generalist," heads a Committee for Cultural and Human Growth which wants to see a decentralized chain of cultural centres across British Columbia, not mammoth urban institutions.

He has ciruclated a counter-brief in response to the foundation's proposal, and Premier Barrett wrote last week stating he had read the brief, liked it, and passed it on to education commissioner John Bremer.

The premier wrote he thought van Goudoever's ideas would fit in well with the current concept of community-

The foundation's brief, meanwhile, has not reportedly elicited government action.

The substance of van Goudoever's brief is that a centralized centre for the arts would buttress the division between "artists" and passive audiences in an age of increasing leisure and social unease when everybody's creativity should be encouraged. "We can no longer keep art on the stage, separated from life," van Goudoever's brief states. "We must begin to share art on an everyday personal basis."

"For too long we have divided people into those who have creative abilities and those who have little or none. I am sick themselves. It seems that this is happening once again.'

"Why hasn't the government and the community considered building centres that would support the people of B.C. to develop their own creative resources and abilities?"

Van Goudoever says grass-roots arts centres would have a healthy effect on a society plagued with the results of mis-directed leisure energy, particularly among young people.

Furthermore, no stereotyped ideas of what art is should be forced on people, the brief states. "The question becomes no longer one of educating people to appreciate but of provid-ing facilities and environments in which people can and are encouraged to actively use their creative faculties."

We must stop encouraging "the development of a few and the mere entertainment of the many." the brief states.

A single-minded commitment to fostering the Victoria symphony orchestra is an "old style cultural outlook" and a "ripoff," the brief says. Also trying to mix a cultural centre with a business convention centre is "impossible."

A clear outline of the alternative cultural centre is of-fered: arts, crafts, music, interior design, meditation could foster personal growth.

Improvised music, dialogue, dance, drama and encounter groups could serve to encourage group creativity.

The brief calls on the government to set up a committee to both "inform the people of ... the province of the psychological crisis which looms as a result of increased leisure" and "ask for participation in the formulation of possible solu-

That argument contradicted the view of planning director Geoff Greenhalgh, who told the committee there was no reason why preparation of the plan should not proceed in conjunction with the phased zoning bylaw amendments. Greenhalgh said by this method the plan could be mo-

Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer has promised to plug the loophole that now allows owners to convert from refused permission to go the condominium route.

Oak Bay council has appealed to Lorimer for immediate action but have received no answer to their request.

A spokesman in Lorimer's department said today there was little likelihood that steps could be taken until the legislature meets in September because legislation would have to be drawn up jointly by Lorimer's and the attorneygeneral's department.

EDWARDSVILLE, III. (UPI) — The young girl sitting in the lobby of a Southern Illinois University building drew many prospects with her sign reading: "I must be married by August 15 for inheritance purposes."

To those who stopped to inquire she said she would give $50,000 to any man who remained her husband for a year.

She had so many anxious males applying she had to come back the next day to give interviews. Scores for men called the campus newspaper to get the girl's telephone

However, the furore ended when the 30 men who signed up rned the whole scheme was part of a sociology ex-

But this particular recommendation was tagged as "totally ridiculous" by Allan Sa-doff, general manager of Dia-Taxicab Association

Sadoff reckons that for every man who tries to help a woman having a baby, "the woman is liable to yell rape."

He added that it's unlikely a 65- or 70-year-old cabbie could learn judo or karate to defend himself.

Lastman touched on the recently by the public of slovenly appearance of cabbies and untidy cab interiors.

Lastman said a driver's dress should not be dictated by the Metropolitan Toronto Licensing Commission but should be left to the individu-

She said: "I have a great capacity to love and so has John, and we feel that the more people we can touch with love during our lives, the better." Then she said: "I don't want marriage or a family because nothing in this world is permanent, and people change as they grow. I don't believe in deception, and to love John, I will never see

I finally agreed. I rented an unfurnished apartment and had my mother take my six rooms of furniture out of storage and ship it to me. It was a 1,500-mile haul. Food to Animals Seen Obscene

SASKATOON (CP) - With starvation facing many areas of the world, it is obscene to take wheat and barley that could be used to feed humans and feed it to animals, says a Saskatoon veterinarian.

Dr. Frank Loew, animal resources centre director at the University of Sakatchewan, says this view is held in many of the foodshort developing countries. But under the existing economic system, "obviously it is not obscene" from the Canadian farmer's Admitting many of his colleagues consider his vews "radical," Loew says he is concerned that a more rational approach has to

'Right now, we're feeding food to animals

Recently, Dr. J. M. Bell, head of the university's animal science department, in a speech critical of the ban on the use of growth-promoting hormones in cattle raising, said the ban meant more grain had to be used to achieve comparable growth rates in cattle without the use of the drug diethyl-

Bell said this would involve enough grain in terms of human food to provide the total-caloric needs of a nation of 12 million for one

Loew said cattle have a special digestive system that allows them to turn grass and other forage — not edible by people — into energy which, in turn, promotes growth.

had resulted in the increased use of drugs to maintain the health of animals fed in concentrated numbers in feedlots.

"We could be feeding double the number of people by letting the animals eat what humans can't eat and using the grain to feed people also."

Loew said that for many years there has been talk of opening up Canada's northland, an area where there are millions of acres of scrubby grassland, 'lots of green growth in the summertime that does nobody any good."

Canada's farmers have to earn a living so they can't give their products away. This situation. Dr. Loew says is compounded by eco-

"I feel, with a lot of other people in Saskat-chewan, that I don't like living in a province that rides high economically when the Chinese people are starving — to be that is morally offensive," he said. "I want to emphasize that I'm not saying that today's farmers are corrupt and obscene on an individual basis because it is the sys-

Job-Sharing Spouses by 1978?

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) 8 a.m. — husband kisses wife goodbye and goes to of-fice. 12 noon — husband re-turns home for lunch. 1 p.m. wife kisses goodbye and goes off to the same job her husband did in the morning.

This is circa A.D. 1978, says New York publisher Michael Korda. By that time, he be-lieves, the biggest revolution in human history — women's liberation — will have swept liberation — will the United States.

"The revolution is going to happen in the next five years," he says.

"Once the laws on equal rights begin to take hold and women move into higher jobs in corporations it will come with a sudden rush."

British-born Korda, editor-in-chief and vice-president of Simon and Schuster, and a nephew of the late British film maker, Sir Alexander Korda, has just published a study on the revolution and male opposition to it in a book called Male Chauvinism.

"It's a major social revolution, much more important than the Chinese and Russian revolutions," Korda says.

"When before in history have 50 per cent of the popu-lation suddenly been un-leashed. That's an awe-inspiring amount of energy, ideas and ambitions which have been repressed."

But Korda does not see any chance that the number of jobs available will double to accommodate the women who want to work. In fact, he believes the number of job opportunities may shrink.

A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

f—IT'S BEST to start your as with the name of the article or service you have to offer, it you have an apartment, room, etc. for rest, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

a-dE CLEAR. Readers respons more quickly and fayorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement, Don't allow the reader to specu-late.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular, hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with

PLAY SAFE. You set the greatest reader strenton by using consecutive incertions. A six-dey order is best and costs less, and you can, or course, stop, your ad as soon as you get the results you went. You bey only for the days your ad appeared, Lower verity rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public

B-PLACE YOURSELF In the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action at readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the yout important.

—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to tast Want Ad action. A courty-ous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remem-ber. Food Union Ready For Talks couver Monday night formulated atrike plans which could close two White Spot restau-rants in Greater Victoria but a spokesman declined today to say if or when a strike will

The Canadian Food and Asso clated Services Union, which represents 1,100 employees at 18 White Spot restaurants in B.C., served strike notice last week and was free to strike from Sunday noon.

President Frank McRae said today the union is exercising patience in an effort to avoid a strike. While no meetings with management are scheduled, the union is ready to sit down with management

About 130 people are employed by the two White Spot restaurants in Victoria and another 45 by an outlet in Nanaimo. The rest are on the lower mainland. **

The White Spot chain is a subsidiary of General Foods

The union is seeking improved wages, a new over-time policy and clarification

It has been offered a 65cents-an-hour increase over two years.

Low-Key Campaign

A low-key petitioning cam-paign by View Royal residents to obtain a public hearing of area sewer plans will run about three weeks, organizer John White said

"Almost everyone who's read it has signed," he noted, pointing out that canvassers have not tried to reach every resident and there had been no "high-pressuring" to get signatures.

He said masses of signatures are not the objective, rather that people who put their names to the petition understand the accompanying material and agree with the need for discussion.

White said it had been a 'positive response, and that pleases me."

A group of View Royal citizens of which White is one of three spokesmen submit to the Capital Regional District that any decision to proceed with taxation of residents for sewer purposes and to impose a total sewer system without public discussion and consideration of alternatives is a de-

LOMAS TAKE OPENER

VANCOUVER - Vancouver Meralomas, defending Big Four Junior Football League champions, had a tough struggle before edging North Shore Cougars, 27-24, in the opening game of the season.

In the other game, Burnaby Spartans whipped Vancouver Blue Bombers, 19-0. The Meralomas led, 21-6, at the half and 27-6 at the end of the third quarter before the Cougars fought back. Victoria Dolphins play their first game Sunday against the Blue Bombers at Royal Athletic Park, Victoria.

Rose, stately Italian, quaint Japanese, Lake and Stage Show Gardens . . plus the Begonia Bower, Show Greenhouse, fascinating Seed and Gift Shop. Restaurant and coffee bar service available.

BUTCHART GARDENS. KNOWN THROUGHOUT THE WORLD FOR THEIR INCREDIBLE BEAUTY... EVER CHANGING, ALWAYS LOVELY! Skilful planning, constant replanting, dedicated gardeners pooling their ideas and knowledge, keep them that way week after week, season after season. Developed from an old abandoned limestone quarry over half a century ago, they have grown to become one of the world's most unusual, written about, talked about, admired attractions.

BUTCHART GARDENS ROMANTIC NIGHT LIGHTING. As darkness takes over, a thousand hidden lights combine with the moon and stars, the hills, trees and shrubs, lakes, lily ponds and fountains, to create a fairyland, softly scented by the flowers — a spectacle so unusual, so grand it's indescribable! Featuring the Sunken Garden and the spectacular Ross Fountains in their majestic "Ballet to the Stars." This alone is worth coming to see. BUTCHART GARDENS FLORAL RESTAURANT. Open every day 11 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., serving delicious lunches, afternoon teas, and delightful buffet suppers in the evening. Continuous Snack and Coffee Bar service.

INTERNATIONAL FILM FESTIVAL

en Is a Document a Drama?

There are two entries in the current Festival International Films which together question the usual definitions of what a documentary film

They are State of Siege by Costa-Gavras and Marjoe by

Howard Smith and Sarah Ker-

In the strictest sense, State of Siege is not a documentary. But it is also not a drama.

It is rather a represent-ation, an effort to document, by using the elements of events, specifically political kidnappings by urban guerril-las in Latin America. Consciously Costa-Gavras and filmwriter Franco Solinas have stripped the dramatic elements of their work — the actors, the acting, the events of theatrical qualities.

Though the events touch life and death, loyalty and shame, suffering and pride, these aspects are given no internal force of their own.

Here are the facts, the filmmakers seem to be saying. But, of course, they are sly artists. The product is pure propaganda — no matter how sympathetic one might be for the cause.

The thinly-veiled account of the kidnapping of an American technical expert — whose expertise is the know-how of torture and ruthlessness—is a no room for personality.
This is not so of Marjoe, the

And out of it emerges pure drama - and maybe a bit of tragedy too.

What starts as an accounting of the man's life - (he started evangelizing at the age of four) ends up as a painful wrestling with the conscience.

When, at the end, the question is finally asked — "Is Marjoe a con man?" — his girl friend has difficulty ansdoes the audience.

Lugwig: The Film Outlasts the Plot

Why the Italian filmmaker Luchino Visconti is obsessed with the decadence of the Germans will someday be a subject worthy of an MA

In the meantime, especially for those of us beyond academia, it's a bore.

Take, for instance, his latest film Ludwig, which is playing in Victoria as part of the Festival of International Films.

This is the third work in which Visconti — who is un-doubtedly a master craftsman explores the moral comingapart of someone important to the German culture. In The Damned it was the Krupp family presumably and in Death in Venice it was Gustav Mahler presumably.

In Ludwig, the subject is more certain — the life of the mad last king of Bavaria. All the weary trappings of Visconti's plots are here: The rot beneath the elegance, homosexuality, disease and taste and culture. All the gimmicks of Viscon-ti's settings: Opulent castles on beautiful mountains, the music of Wagner. But they are not enough to prop up the film as a dramatic vehicle. Visconti has debased his own currency and he actually runs out of story before the Even the actors don't seem to care — or they've been told it doesn't matter. Helmut Berger, as the tortured Ludwig, seems made of the same plaster-of-paris as is the mocked-up setting. Trevor Howard as Wagner whom Ludwig supported for many years - makes the best effort. For the others, like Romy Schneider as the Empress of Austria, it's just a masque, a sort of Ruritanian drag show.

BERGER . . . plaster of paris

is difficult to imagine that this film was made by the same interpreter of human emotion who made Rocco and His Brothers nearly 20 years ago:

Perhaps the decadence of latter-day Italian cinema would make a good MA thesis

Finish the month with a not too difficult job (in most gardens), that of cutting off old flower heads.

You may have roses which have been allowed to drop their petals but retain their seedpods, growing larger every day at the expense of storing strength for next years flowers.

With some of the hybrid teas, allowing seedpods to develop prevents a second crop of blooms in early September and the possibility of a few buds to open (in the house) for Christmas Day. So cut the stems, with the seedpods; then give a thorough watering.

You will notice other shrubs which have formed seed-

You will notice other shrubs which have formed seed-pods. These should be out off promptly, as being an impor-tant part of shrub culture while the plants are in the young stage. Some have only the dried remains of earlier flowering with no pods formed. These utimately drop off, or you can remove them if you wish.

Care must be shown with azaleas, camellias and other plants which form new flower buds in all. They can be seen even now and they must not be harmed. They open in spring

* Herbaceous perennials which have bloomed must not be allowed to retain seedpods. We see delphinums with long stalks of pods, lupins with black pods bursting with ripened seed and daylilies (hermerocallis) having swelling green seedpods; cut these old stems down without removing good green

The leaves are needed for food manufacturing. The plants need a good supply for overwintering to enable them to make early growth next year.

Perennials of low rosette type, such as those of the dianthus family (pinks, carnations and others) are healthier if flower stems are cut down for their whole length. New growth comes from the roots. Leave all the basal rosette of foliage and the plants thrive.

Heathers are considered by gardeners as midway between shrubs and perennials. They are easy and satisfactory plants for sunny gardens but they demand the clipping of browned flowers as soon as color is lost. If not done, new green growth begins on the tip of the flowered stem, thus elongating it and leaving bareness below.

This is why we see bare centers to heathers, with a circle of flowers and green tips out beyond.

Annual flowers normally producing seedpods in our climate must have old stems cut off as flowers fade. Snapdrag-ons done promptly flower until October; dahlias from seed, display their gay colors until frost; the old Scotch marigold (calendula) almost goes through winter if seeding is pre-

Declarer unquestionably got a bad break in the trump suit, for if the trumps had been divided either 2-2 or 3-1, the loss of a trump trick would have been avoided no matter how declarer played the trump suit. And if West happened to have the four out-standing trumps, then West couldn't be prevented from winning a trump trick: in this case, whenever South led a low trump out of his hand, West would put up his tenspot, forcing dummy's ace and simultaneously promoting his jack into a winner.

Barrett Fires Frank Calder

Frank Calder, British Columbia's first native Indian cabinet minister, was fired this morning by Premier Barrett.

"I have asked today for Mr. Calder's resignation from cabinet," Barrett told reporters in a special news conference at 10:30 a.m. He was visibly distressed.

"It is regretable but nonetheless I have lost confidence in Mr. Calder and for that reason I have asked for his resignation."

The dismissal is effective immediately. Victor police chief Jack Gregory said today that Calder had been connected with an investigation which resulted in the arrest

The incident took place "recently," Gregory said, although he said he could not elaborate without the authority of the attorney-general.

Barrett would not comment whether the loss of confidence stemmed from Calder's personal or professional life. He said he had reached the decision this morning after talking to Calder.

Calder was unavailable for comment

today.

The Atlin MLA was the first native Indian elected to a Canadian legislature. He has served his constituency since 1949.

Calder was appointed Minister Without

Nov. 15 and was given a year to prepare a complete report on all aspects of Indian life in the province.

Unanimous cabinet backing was given to Barrett's decision at a special 25-minute cabinet meeting called at noon, the premier announced after the meeting.

Barrett said he was not sure whether Calder's report on the Indian situation was finished, adding that he would personally take over Calder's work "for the time being."

Cadder's future is "something he must decide," Barrett said.

UBCM first vice-president, Fleming said: "The two senior levels of government have got to make up their minds whether to recognize local governments as viable ones or as useful appendages to look after the jobs they don't want to be bothered with."

Fleming said that the legislation in-oduced at the last session of the legislature had had a greater impact on municipal affairs

"If the provincial government wants to take us seriously," he said, "they have to respect our long-range plans.

Fleming said that the meeting had been arranged in Prince George so that people from the northern part of the province would find it easier to attend and work on the 171 resolutions that are to be voted on.

Both he and UBCM president Mayor Ross. Marks of 100-Mile House described the clash of dates as "unfortunate.

"They probably have their own reasons for choosing that date," Marks said, "But they certainly should have taken us into account and they haven't."

Both he and Fleming said the government apparently had overlooked the fact that MLAs get a mandate from the same voters at the local level.

Van Goudoever says grass-roots arts centres would have a healthy effect on a society plagued with the results of mis-directed leisure energy, particularly among young people." Furthermore, no stereotyped ideas of what art is should be forced on people, the brief states. "The question becomes no longer one of educating people to appreciate but of providing facilities and environments in which people can and are encouraged to actively use their creative faculties."

We must stop encouraging "the development of a few and the mere entertainment of the many," the brief states, vored a slow and cautious approach to the task of prepar-ing an official community plan for James Bay.

The draft plan was present-d by the planning department for endorsement by city council's zoning committee, but members felt no action should be taken to adopt the document in principle as a broad statement of objectives - at the present time.

Crystal On List

Helmcken House, Point Ellice House, the Empress Hotel and the old Crystal Gardens building are included in a list of some 200 city buildings suggested to city council as heritage structures worthy of preservation.

The inventory, compiled by Ald. Sam Bawlf, was dis-cussed briefly by council's zoning committee today with agreement that it could form the nucleus of a policy for historic home preservation.

Bawlf, a developer who has restored several old buildings in the city, suggested the city take advantage of recent amendments to the Municipal Act which give municipallities substantial powers to desig-nate and preserve heritage buidings.

One of the first steps, he said, should be the appointment of a five-member heritage advisory board which would carry out close liaison with city planners.

step would be "premature" when council is in the midst of rezoning virtually the whole of James Bay in accordance with the principles of the recently-published James Bay Study.

"We are not suggesting this be conclusively designated as our official community plan for James Bay," he said.

A community plan has more formality and inflexibility than other types of plans prepared for a municipality's guidance, as it has to be registered with the provincial government and cannot be altered without cabinet approval.

Mayor Peter Pollen has said he considers the prepara-tion and early registration of a James Bay plan to be one of his prime objectives for 1973.

There has been a great deal of delay as a result of the land freeze ... on the whole a slowdown, and we are sewering land as soon as possible. There has been greater and greater demand for serviced lots, and that's the truth," Laurenson said.

Earlier, the province re-leased Saanich from the freeze for purposes of a tri-government land assembly project off Roy Road. About 100 acres of residential land is being secured for resale at cost to the lower and middle income range of prospective builders.

Special Meeting

Guidelines for conversion of apartments to condominiums in Oak Bay will be laid down at a special council meeting called for 5:15 p.m. today.

Council will consider recommendations made by the zoning committee Wednesday.

In a co-operative, however, the apartment owner sets up private company and sells shares to tenants guaranteeing them exclusive use of certain parts of the building their apartments.

Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer has promised their office eight hours a day, but emergency calls at any other time are directed automatically to Saanich comto plug the loophole that now allows owners to convert from apartments to co-operatives if refused permission to go the condominium route.

Oak. Bay council has appealed to Lorimer for immediate action but have received no answer to their request.

A spokesman in Lorimer's department said today there was little likelihood that steps could be taken until the legis lature meets in September because legislation would have to be drawn up jointly by Lorimer's and the attorney-general's department. The spokesman said it was the proposed legislation would be retroactive.

filmmakers use to assess him and reality is the tool

Take, for instance, his latest film Ludwig, which is playing in Victoria as part of the Festival of International Films.

This is the third work in which Visconti — who is undoubtedly a master craftsman - explores the moral comingapart of someone important to the German culture. In The Damned it was the Krupp family presumably and in Death in Venice it was Gustav Mahler presumably.

In Ludwig, the subject is more certain — the life of the mad last king of Bavaria. All the weary trappings of Visconti's plots are here: The rot beneath the elegance, homosexuality, disease and madness under the facade of taste and culture. All the gimmicks of Viscon-

Visconti has debased his own currency and he actually runs out of story before the film is done. Even the actors don't seem to care — or they've been told it doesn't matter. Helmut Berger, as the tortured Ludwig, seems made of the same plaster-of-paris as is the mocked-up setting. Trevor Howard as Wagner whom Ludwig supported for many years — makes the best effort. For the others, like Romy Schneider as the Empress of Austria, it's just a masque, a sort of Ruritanian drag show.

It is difficult to imagine that this film was made by the same interpreter of human emotion who made Rocco and His Brothers nearly 20 years ago.

Perhaps the decadence of latter-day Italian cinema would make a good MA thesis young crocodile that ap-parently hitch-hiked to this city from South America inside a box of bananas tried to finish its journey on foot.

Someone else's foot. Peter Ascoli, 16, was riding his bicycle across a vacant lot in a Montreal suburb \"when this thing came racing out of the puddles and grabbed onto

He scooped the reptile into a box and brought it home for examination.

A check of nature books and an encycloptdia proved the catch was a crocodile.

An examination of the vacant lot turned up the empty banana boxes in which the crocodile is believed to have entered the country.

"I have asked today for Mr. Calder's res-ig ation from cabinet," Barrett told report-ers in a special news conference at 10:30 a.m. He was visibly distressed.

"It is regrettable but nonetheless I have lost confidence in Mr. Calder and for that reason I have asked for his resignation."

The dismissal is effective immediately Victoria police chief Jack Gregory said today that Calder had been connected with an investigation which resulted in the arrest

The incident took place "recently," Gregory said, although he said he could not elaborate without the authority of the attorney-general.

The plane apparently hit a retaining wall at the end of a runway, spewing bodies and debris over a wide area and

The runway was littered with charred bodies and jagged pieces of the airliner.

WASHINGTON (UPI) Citing the secret bombing of Cambodia in 1969 and 1970, Rep. Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass., introduced in the House today the first resolution calling for impeachment of President Nixon. (See also Pages 3, 10.)

Drinan's bill was not given the privileged status he could have demanded. Had he asked, the House would have been forced to stop all other business while the impeachment resolution was resolved.

Several other bills have been introduced in the House since revelations of the Watergate scandal began that have called for a committee of inquiry to look into the possibility of impeachment. But Drinan's was the first actual impeachment resolution

Drinan, a Roman Catholic priest, said: "I have come to the point where I must follow my convictions and my conscience and recommend that the House of Representatives pursue its duty under Article 2 Section 4 of the constitution which provides for the impeachment of the president."

Drinan could have sought recognition on the floor, and demanded that the House begin impeachment proceed-ings. If he had received a sec-ond to his motion, the busihes of the House would have been suspended until it decid-ed whether to impeach. Instead, Drinan's bill was referred to the House judiciary committee, which has been reluctant in the past to take up the impeachment issue. The House leadership has said it felt impeachment proceedings were "prema-

OTTAWA - Canadian and States have reached agreement on new air routes to be divided among airlines in the two ries, informed sources said Tuesday. While this is a major step certain obstacles still have to be cleared before the two countries can sign a new bilateral air agreement These issues include Washington's objections to certain Canadian air charter rules and the dispute about U.S. toms pre-clearance in Canadiairports for passengers bound for American cities. As the current round of talks is expected to end later today, at least one more session of negotiations will be necessary before the bilateral is wrapped up. That could force the government to change its Sept. 10 deadline for ending customs pre-clearance.

Transport Minister Jean Marchand recently extended July 29 to "allow time in July and early August to finalize the complex air negotiations." But the discussions are stretching on.

WASHINGTON — H. R. Haldeman disputed John Michell and John Dean and testified today that he was kept in the dark throughout 1972 about White. House involvement in the Watergate break in or other potentially embarrassing activities.

Coolly, with a frequent grin Haldeman — once considered the second most powerful man in the government — listened while the events that Mitchell called "White House" horrors" were ticked off and said all had escaped his attention until this spring.

The crew-cut former adverwhen he did learn that through White House efforts funds were channeled to the seven original Watergate defendants, he treated that news ceived and dismissed."

UBCM Livid Over Session Dates

Provincial and municipal leaders are in a head-on clash over the scheduled opening of the Legislature's fall session Sept. 13.

The opening will be smack in the middle of the annual convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, to be held in Prince George Invitations have been sent to MLAs to attend the convention, designed to deal with problems of concern at the local level.

Oak Bay Mayor Frances Elford, a member of the UBCM executive, said today:

"If this is the degree of importance they put on local government B.C. is in a bad She said that the provincial government had been well aware of the UBCM meeting dates for a long time. "They've known for a year at least," she

Mayor S. A. Fleming of Vernon says the clash of dates represents "a major policy confrontation" between the three levels of UBCM first vice-president, Fleming said: "The two senior levels of government have got to make up their minds whether to recognize local governments as viable ones as useful appendages to look after the jobs they don't want to be bothered with.

Fleming said that the legislation introduced at the last session of the legislature had had a greater impact on municipal affairs than any made before that time.

"If the provincial government wants to take us seriously," he said, "they have to respect our long-range plans."

Fleming said that the meeting had been arranged in Prince George so that people from the northern part of the province would find it easier to attend and work on the 171 resolutions that are to be voted on.

Both he and UBCM president Mayor Ross Marks of 100-Mile House described the clash of dates as "unfortunate."

"They probably have their own reasons for choosing that date," Marks said, "But they certainly should have taken us into account and they haven't."

Both he and Fleming said the government apparently had overlooked the fact that MLAs get a mandate from the same voters at the local level.
